Call for Papers: UR-CBE-School of Economics Research Seminar Series 4

6th July 2021

Background

The UR-CBE School of Economics with Kiel University, and the Institute for the World Economy, Kiel, Germany, are implementing a cooperation to strengthen the Master Program in Economics and enhance research in the School of Economics. Under the partnership, the School of Economics-CBE organizes a series of research seminars. The seminars provide platforms for researchers from the School of Economics, UR, Kiel University, the Institute for the World Economy and other Rwandan institutions including the National Bank of Rwanda (BNR), Ministry of Finance and Economic Planning (MINECOFIN), Institute of Policy Analysis Rwanda (IPAR), to present their papers so as to get comments from their peers. The seminars also offer the opportunity to share research results for dissemination purposes.

Call for Papers:

The School of Economics is pleased to announce a call for papers for the research seminar 4 that will be virtually organized through Microsoft Teams on 6th July 2021 from 2pm to 5pm. We welcome submissions from the broader areas of economics that empirically contribute to the academic debate. In the Seminar, we plan to have one invited paper. The submitted paper should be original research and plagiarism free. It may be a work that is still in progress.

Submission and acceptance:

The submission of full papers (up to 7000 words in PDF format) is open from 4th June to 22nd June 2021. The papers should be submitted via email to Dr. Ruhara Mulindabigwi Charles (ruharamch@yahoo.fr) and copied to Prof Rainer Thiele (rainer.thiele@ifw-kiel.de) with reference to school of Economics Research Seminar 4. Notifications for acceptance will be done by 1st July 2021. The program of the Seminar will be sent together with the acceptance note on the same day.
