CALL FOR RESEARCH PAPERS

UR-CBE School of Economics Research Seminar, April 2, 2026, University of Rwanda, Gikondo Campus, Kigali

The School of Economics at the University of Rwanda is pleased to announce a call for papers for its upcoming Research Seminar. This academic forum is designed to foster critical discourse on the evolving economic landscape of Rwanda and the broader East African region. We invite faculty members, doctoral candidates, and independent researchers to submit original research that addresses contemporary economic challenges through empirical, theoretical, or policy-oriented analyses.

CORE RESEARCH THEMES

Submissions are encouraged in, but not limited to, the following thematic areas:

- Market, price, competition, and consumer behaviour.
- Environment, sustainability and policy.
- Green growth, agricultural economics, and climate resilience.
- Monetary policy, financial systems, and micro-finance.
- Trade, regional integration, and firm performance.
- Human capital, labour markets, and social protection.
- Socio-economic resilience.
- Digital transformation and fintech.

PAPER SUBMISSION GUIDELINES

We welcome the submission of both full research papers and work-in-progress. The deadline for submissions is fixed on March 2, 2026. The papers should be submitted via email: soe.seminar2026@gmail.com with a copy to schooleconomics.ur@gmail.com with reference of "School of Economics Research Seminar". Notifications for acceptance will be released by March 15, 2026. The detailed seminar program will be sent together with the acceptance note on the same day.
