POLICY STATEMENT

1. PURPOSE STATEMENT

Inaugural lectures present an opportunity for showcasing exciting and ground-breaking research and teaching being carried out by professors in our University. Each lecture represents a significant milestone in an academic's career, providing official recognition of their promotion or appointment to full professorship. These lectures are furthermore an ideal opportunity for new professors to introduce themselves and to present an overview of their own contribution to their field to academic peers, students and research collaborators. They are also a platform for celebrating a professor's academic achievements with their family, friends, mentors and colleagues.

2. SCOPE

1. Inaugural lectures shall form part of the University's Public lectures series and will only be given by newly appointed professors who have been appointed in academic Schools and Centres. Honorary Professors are exempted from delivering inaugural lectures.

3. THE POLICY

3.1 The inaugurands shall be required to present either of the following:

3.1.1 An overview of their contribution, in their respective fields, to academic peers, students, research collaborators. In certain instances, the delivering of an inaugural lecture may present an opportunity to engage with local, national and international industry and businesses, as well as other interested parties (including and general public).

3.1.2 The future of their disciplines, particular subject, in a changing context.

3.1.3 The contribution of their discipline to the mission and strategic direction of the University of Rwanda.

3.2 Inaugural lectures shall be delivered by all newly appointed full professors within twelve (12) months of the date of appointment.

3.3 Each inaugural lecture shall be delivered by an inaugurand at a duly allocated venue, preferably on the base campus of the inaugurand.

- 3.4 An Inaugurand unable to deliver an inaugural lecture (for whatever reason), shall be expected to request and receive permission from the Registrar, who will consult with the Vice Chancellor, for deferment or postponement of the inaugural lecture to the following year.
- 3.5 Inaugural lectures shall not have time set aside for 'questions and answers'.
- 3.6 Inaugural lectures shall be documented in DVD or similar format, and a copy must be deposited to the University Archives.

4. PROCEDURES AND GUIDELINES FOR IMPLEMENTATION

- 4.1 The inaugural lectures should be planned for a weekday during term time; starting around 17h00 and lasting for approximately 45 minutes.
